And the Winner Is...

There is no doubt that the perfect award for me would be the award for the “Biggest Talker.” Most people I know would say that I do talk too much, and I am kind of known for talking a lot as well. The “Biggest Talker” Award would fit me best, because I am always talking, and I am kind of known for that.

The “Biggest Talker” Award is an award for people who overly talk a lot. Another point in getting it is to be known for talking a lot. Now the key in getting this award is to not be a very annoying talker. Obviously, talking a lot can be annoying to other people, but there is a “perfect” amount of talking that fits right in between not annoying and annoying.

I bet if you ask most of the people I know, they would say that I talk a lot. Now that isn’t a thing that is just me, it runs as a trait on my dad’s side of the family. My dad’s side of the family originates from Brooklyn, Northern Jersey, and Southern Jersey. That trait is talking, and it happened to also be passed down to me as well. For me, I fit every one of the points in getting the award. Now the annoying factor can vary between person to person. When I respond to a question, I sometimes tend to make the response a bit longer than it needs to be. With these factors, without a doubt, I would be a great fit for this award.
