Anybody Can Do Anything

“All our dreams can come true, if we have the courage to pursue them.” Walt Disney once said that, and it is very true. We can do anything we want; we just have to believe in ourselves and put forth the effort to accomplish what is required.

Walt Disney once said, “All our dreams can come true, if we have the courage to pursue them.” This is a statement I try to live by every day. Anybody can pursue anything they want in life, even if it seems impossible. To accomplish the task, they must put in the work, effort, and enthusiasm to pursue it. Things do not just come to you on a silver platter.

Walt Disney himself lived by this statement every day of his life. When he was a kid, he wanted to become an animator and make movies. Once he moved to California, he tried to get a job as a director wherever he could. No one hired him. Instead of just giving up immediately, he kept going. He even partnered with his brother and made his own company. He wanted a theme park, so he pursued the dream and it opened in 1955. The point is, even dreams that include building big parks like Disneyland can come true, all you need to do is put in the effort to make it a reality.

If you have a dream, you can do it. However, it does not just get handed to you, you must put forth the work, effort, and whatever else is required to do it. For example, Walt Disney had many dreams and all of them came true because he worked for everything that he had by the end of his life. All your dreams can come true.
