

1. How are the monotheistic religions (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam) similar?

The three religions are the same mainly because they all have the belief in only one God. They also all belong to the same religious family, which was started by Abraham. All three religions have the beliefs of the afterlife, soul, commandments, sabbath, and fasting.

2. How are the monotheistic religions (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam) different?

Each religion has their own holy book, different from the other. The Bible is the holy book for Christianity, the Torah for Judaism, and the Qur'an for Islam. Christians believe in the resurrection of Jesus and that he is the son of God. However, not all the religions agree with that. They also have different beliefs. For example, Judaism has the belief in food taboos, and Islam has the belief in that Muhammad is a prophet of God.

3. Do you think the three monotheistic religions (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam) are more similar than different OR more different than similar? Use evidence from the lesson to support your response.

I would say that the answer to this question can go both ways, depending on how you look at it. They have so many similarities, as they are all in the same religious family, but at the same time have so many differences. They all started in the same region, believe in one God, and all follow a similar system. But they each have their own holy book, their own separate beliefs in things, and value things differently.

Because of these reasons, that is why I believe that this answer can go both ways.
